Superintendent of Schools

Terri Woodward, Skyview High School head custodian, and Katie Carmody, Mountain View Elementary School head custodian, recently attended a national training conference hosted by the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) on school indoor air quality in Washington, D.C. They left the conference feeling there were a number of things that could be done to benefit the district. They would like to share some of that information with the School Board, and hope to begin small pilot programs at their respective schools in the fall.
