While your student has to stay home for now, that does not mean that they are without learning opportunities. All of our teachers at Homer Middle School have the classroom activities posted on Canvas for students to complete at home if they are feeling well enough.

While a student is home...

1. Do you need a device to access Canvas? You can check one out from the school. Please contact the office!
2. What are your classes? Fill in the blank schedule on the next page so you don't forget any!
3. Check the Canvas page for each of your classes. You may need to do this several times while you are home. Teachers will post work as they have it ready for you, which may not all be at the same time.
4. It may also be helpful to check PowerSchool. Some teachers will list missing assignments there as well, while the actual assignment will be on Canvas.
5. Complete as much of the work as you can while you are at home. You don't want to fall too far behind in your classes.
6. If at any time anything is confusing or you have questions, please call or email your teacher or the office for help.
7. Our instructional tutor will check in with you after a few days of being home to see if you need any help.

When a student returns to school....

1. Meet with Mrs. Redmond right away to check in on the work you completed while you were home.
2. Mrs. Redmond will help the student make a list of what they still need to finish and complete a "Return to Learning Plan".
3. Students that have work to finish when they come back to school are encouraged to work on it in the library before school 8:30-8:55 am and during their lunch enrichment time until they are completely caught up.
4. As students complete the work on the "Return to Learning Plan", teachers will sign off on the form.
5. When all teachers have signed the form and all work is complete, students are to turn the "Return to Learning Plan" in to Mrs. Redmond.

Thank you for helping support your student during this time! We can't wait for them to be back!
