What is SDL?

SELF-DIRECTED LEARNING CYCLE

You may hear from your students that they have an SDL period during their day. And you may wonder what that means. So let me introduce you to SDL at River City Academy. At RCA, high school students are given an SDL period to work independently toward academic goals. SDL stands for Self Directed Learning. Students will set goals on Summit and make a plan to accomplish them. They then follow through on the plan and show progress and learning through completed checkpoints or Power Focus Area tests about content. They then meet with the teacher to reflect on how their time was spent. This process sets students up to practice habits of self-efficacy, agency, and self-direction that will benefit their future beyond school!
