ADVISORY COMMITTEE,
SITE COUNCIL AND/OR
P.T.A., K.P.A.A., K.P.E.A.,
K.P.E.S.A, BOROUGH ASSEMBLY:

Ms. Rachel Rowe, Homer High School PTA representative, reported on the Alaska PTA Legislative Issues Conference in Anchorage and noted that the area cost differential issue was chosen as one of the priorities as well as biannual funding and the Alaska Public School Lands Trust issue. She thanked Mrs. Downing for her willingness to represent District 2.

Representative Paul Seaton reviewed the history behind the creation of the Geographic Area Cost Differential Task Force and explained the philosophy behind the many studies that have been conducted and the reasons for rejection by the legislature. He predicted that the issue will be addressed during the upcoming legislative session but if not, the school districts with inadequate area cost differentials might consider filing a lawsuit.

Dr. Anderson stated that he understood that according to a study conducted a number of years ago, teacher costs were the same throughout the state. He stated that the Institute of Social and Economic Research (ISER) was to study the cost of educating students throughout the state and was not about increasing the number of teachers in rural areas. He asked what portion of the factor goes towards enticing teachers versus equalizing costs of educating students around the state.

Representative Seaton explained that the first ISER study analyzed the methodology of the American Institute of Research (AIR) study and the proposal was made to the legislature to conduct a study to find out whether rural and remote teachers are being paid the same as their counterparts in Anchorage. He explained that the cost of living in the rural areas is much greater and added that the basis of the ISER study also stated that the turn over rate among teachers in rural villages is high and many fewer teachers apply for those vacancies, creating a small pool of young, inexperienced teachers, instead of a balance which is needed to provide a quality education. He reported that 30% of the report was based on cost and 70% was based on trying to ensure that there is a teacher pool that compares to the Anchorage School District. He stated that the legislature is not convinced that giving additional money to teachers will keep them in rural areas.

Dr. Anderson stated that the KPBSD is not in the same category as rural Alaska and would get a 27% increase based on the proposed change in the area cost differential. He stated that the KPBSD has been deprived because the legislature has not responded relative to the cost of doing business compared to Anchorage, Fairbanks, and Mat-Su. He stated that the District would have $10 million more this school year if the area cost study results would have been implemented as presented last year. He stated all of the area cost studies have been ignored and he asked how many more years

District students will have to suffer. Dr. Anderson stated that $100 million has been taken away from the District over the past twenty years because of the refusal to recognize that it costs the District more to educate students than it does in Anchorage. He assured those present that the Board cares that all Alaskan students receive an equitable amount for education. He stated that there is nothing in the governor's message that addresses inflation and increases in salaries and benefits (a majority of every school district's budget). He stated that the governor's proposal will help with TRS/PERS and fuel costs but does not help with the increase in labor costs, and noted that school employees expect that they will not be paid less over the term of their employment. He stated that the Board would accept a change in education funding that does not necessarily change the base student funding but changes the area cost differential instead. He acknowledged that the Anchorage School District as well as other districts would not support the changes because they would not receive much advantage. He stated that with oil selling for $60 a barrel, the legislature should be able to implement the area cost study recommendations and if not, there will never be another change in which case the District should pursue a lawsuit.

Ms. Wassilie asked Representative Seaton what the ISER study recommendations mean for approximating Anchorage teachers. Representative Seaton stated that the depth of a teacher's knowledge and the length of their stay make the difference for students. Teachers in rural areas of Alaska are paid less than Anchorage teachers who are receiving the same salary because the cost of living is higher. He reported that the ISER study asks how much money will it take to encourage as many teachers to apply for vacancies in non urban areas as in Anchorage and how can non urban districts keep teachers from leaving. He stated that the amount recommended to accomplish equity in education is $88 million. He reported that the legislature is not convinced that districts can pay teachers enough to stay in rural areas for their entire career, which is why the ISER study recommendations have been ignored although they are willing to consider funding that would extend teacher longevity by 2 to 3 years. He stated that he understands that KPBSD has been under funded, and has tried for many years to achieve equitable funding.

Mrs. Brown expressed appreciation to Representative Seaton for his attendance at the Area Cost Differential Task Force meetings and for the report to the Board. She summarized the area cost study issue beginning in 1998 and clarified that the goals have changed and noted that different pieces of information were requested as the studies progressed. She stated that the Task Force will likely report that the two major pieces will be direct cost (approximately 30%) and teacher retention in non urban areas (70%) and asked Representative Seaton if there was anything to add.

Representative Seaton stated that the AIR study reviewed the cost of educating students throughout the state and noted that costs for the same goods or services differed considerably, which is why the ISER study was asked to further review the issue and found that teacher salaries are the same statewide and yet living expenses are not.

She reported that another area of concern for the District is the decrease of enrollment that may cause schools to close and noted that digital schools may be the solution.
